

June Alexander
Associate - Adelaide

PhD Candidate – School Of Education, Faculty of Education, Humanities & Law, Flinders University South Australia
Masters Disability Studies, Flinders University
BAppSc (Developmental Disabilities), Flinders University

Lecturer - Disability and Community Inclusion Unit, Faculty of Medicine, Nursing and Health Sciences, Flinders University

June is currently undertaking a PhD thesis entitled: “The state of on-the-job training in Australian Disability Employment Services: Implications for Policy & Practice.” The study will determine the nature and extent of the provision of on-the-job training for supported employees with disabilities. The research will identify what factors influence the provision of on-the-job training by disability vocational trainers, and present recommendations to support disability employment services and staff, to provide effective training to those with intellectual disability.

As part of her role in the Disability and Community Inclusion Unit at Flinders University, June is involved in the supervision of students undertaking research and has a particular focus on employment and training for people with intellectual disability.

June's previous experience includes various Senior Management roles, including CEO of a rural Disability Service. Her experience includes involvement on numerous Disability Employment Boards. From her earliest job as hands on staff, to her current roles, June's passion for quality workplace training including Systematic Instruction Training for those with an intellectual disability has been evident. June is our resident Systematic Instruction Specialist.